SECOND REPORT

OF THE SECRETARY OF

THE CLASS OF 1865,

IN

HARVARD COLLEGE.

JULY, 1865, TO JULY, 1868.

PRINTED FOR THE USE OF THE CLASS.

CAMBRIDGE:
WELCH, BIGELOW, AND COMPANY,
PRINTERS TO THE UNIVERSITY.
1868.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2008 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

http://www.archive.org/details/n02reportofsec1865harvuoft

P
Univ
H

SECOND REPORT

OF THE SECRETARY OF

THE CLASS OF 1865,

IN

HARVARD COLLEGE.

JULY, 1865, TO JULY, 1868.

PRINTED FOR THE USE OF THE CLASS.

348760
4. 4. 38.

CAMBRIDGE:
WELCH, BIGELOW, AND COMPANY,
PRINTERS TO THE UNIVERSITY.
1868.

CLASS COMMITTEE.

THOMAS FRANKLIN BROWNELL, Class Secretary.
CHARLES HARRISON TWEED.
WALTER HENRY DORR.

Classmates : —

At the time of our graduation I prepared and caused to be printed for your use my First Report, which was a collection of such facts in our College course as were deemed to be of value or of interest to you. In accordance with the intention then expressed, I now am happy to greet you all with my Second Report, containing those events in the history of each one of you which I have been able to learn, and have deemed worthy of record. I trust that these outlines of the histories of each other, during the last three years, collected for your advantage, will be of interest to you.

In the preparation of this Report the endeavor has been to state as briefly as possible the facts that are given, but to give every fact that is known, even if some of them may seem of very little value or practical use. I have remembered that it is prepared for your sole use, and have attempted to acquaint each one of you with the fortunes and doings of the rest. To the eighty-four classmates who have answered my circular, I return my sincere thanks for the assistance they have given me. Under their names I have, in almost every case, placed all they have told me, and am happy to hold myself responsible for any errors or omissions which may appear in their histories. For the insufficiency of the accounts of the rest, made up, as they necessarily have been, from old letters, from reports of third parties, or from other and various sources, the blame, if blame there be, must rest with those members themselves.

In the list of our Class, printed at the beginning of the Report, all those whose names are not in italics have actually graduated as members of our Class. Of the remainder, five died during their College course, six left to join the class of 1866, and the rest left during the course for various reasons. This list is intended to show who are the graduated members of the Class.

In the Report itself, I have deemed it most proper to place under the first head, not only the graduates, but those who died during the course, while yet connected with the Class. All the rest I have placed together as "Temporary Members." Among these are all who have at any time been connected with the Class, without regard to the length of their stay with us. Two we never saw, some stayed only a few weeks or months, while others were with us nearly the whole four years. I have thought it better to include all than to leave out a single name in which any of us may be interested.

At the end of the Report there have been placed a summary of it, and statistics of such facts as it has been deemed desirable to record. Those who are given as taking the degrees of A. M. and M.D. in 1868 are such as have expressed an intention to take them then.

The Secretary of the Class of 1855, in his last Report, gave some amusing statistics with reference to the average number of children born to the Class each year, and to each member. I must confess that I hesitate to follow in his footsteps, and to divide one baby into such small fractions as an honest calculation would compel me to do.

I wish to remind you of a request made in the last Report, and to impress upon each one of you that it is desirable and necessary, for Class purposes and also for your advantage, to give me information of your movements, changes in business, of place of residence, and especially of address, and of any event of interest in your lives. I desire you to send to me any corrections you may perceive necessary to these brief outlines contained in the following Report; and always I shall be pleased to hear from every one of you, and of your prosperity, and to give you all the information concerning your classmates that the position I hold may give me. It is hoped that all will be so thoughtful that, in the Third Report, no one's name will appear without a complete and definite account of his life.

If these pages, giving to you some recital of the doings of your Classmates since graduation, shall in any way strengthen and renew your interest in our Alma Mater, in our Class, and in each other's welfare, and shall freshen your lives with pleasant recollections of College days spent so happily among those "ancient architectural piles," or if the memory of such as are gone — of Paine, of Russel, of Smith, or of Wellman — shall make your lives braver and better, this Report will not have been prepared in vain.

Hoping to be able to greet many of you at our first Triennial Meeting, I wish all good things to each one of you.

T. FRANK. BROWNELL,
Class Secretary.

New York, No. 229 Broadway,
10 June, 1868.

OUR CLASS.

Alison, Francis John
Amory, Edward Lindsay
Anderson, Frank Eustace
Apjones, Ludlow
Apthorp, John Vaughan
Bancroft, Robert Hale
Bent, George Conway
Blight, George
Boardman, William Elbridge
Bowen, Charles Holder Borden
Boyd, Charles Malcolm* 1864
Brackett, John Quincy Adams
Bradford, John Henry
Brownell, Thomas Franklin
Buzell, Albert Clark
Carter, John Wilkins
Chadwick, James Read
Chamberlain, William Edwin
Chase, Albro Elmore
Churchill, John Wesley
Clark, Edmund Sandford
Clifford, Charles Warren
Cook, Joseph
Coppenhagen, John Henry
Curtis, Horatio Greenough
Cushing, Herbert Baldwin
Dabney, Walter
Dillaway, George Wales
Dodge, Lewis Allen
Doe, Orlando Witherspoon
Dorr, Walter Henry
Duraut, William Bullard
Ellis, Charles James
Emerson, Edward Waldo
Emerson, George Aaron
Ffrost, George Seward
Fish, William Henry
Fisher, George Albert
Foote, Cleaveland
French, Isaac Vanderpoel
French, William Abrams
Gardner, Henry Gardner
Garter, Charles Ashley
Goddard, George Augustus
Goddard, Thomas Farrie
Goddard, William
Gold, William Jason
Gorham, Frank Glean
Greene, Francis Bunker
Greenleaf, Richard Cranch
Greenough, Alfred
Greenough, David Stoddard
Greenough, John
Hanson, James Ira
Henck, William Channing
Hill, George Anthony
Hollister, Frank Merrick
Holmes, Jabez Silas
Hooper, Henry
Hosmer, Edward Downer
Howard, William Carey
Hoyt, James Otis
Hunnewell, Walter
Jackson, Patrick Tracy
Jewett, Nathaniel March
Johnson, George Jotham
Leeds, Albert Ripley
*Leeds, Nathaniel Colver 1867
Lewis, Louis Charles
Lincoln, Charles Jairus
Lincoln, Roland Crocker
McDonald, James William* 1862
McIlwain, Robert Clindenon
Marsh, Charles Brown

Mayhew, William Greene*	1863	Shute, Charles Bailey
Mifflin, George Harrison		*Smith, George Homer	1867
Mitchell, Lebbeus Horatio		Snow, Marshall Solomon
Moore, Albert Monroe		Soley, John Codman
Morrill, Ferdinand Gordon		Souther, Charles Edward
Murdock, Lewis Chaplin		Sparrell, Frederic William
Neal, George William		Stearns, George Albert
Newell, Robert Ralston		Stickney, William Brunswick
Nichols, Lyman		Sturgis, Frederic Russell
Ordway, David Leighton		Swett, George Woodbury
Osgood, George Frederick		Symmes, Thomas Edmund
Paine, Sumner*	1863	Thompson, Frederick H.
Papanti, Lorenzo Francesco		Tiffany, John Kerr
Pasco, Frederick		Towle, Melville Cox
Peirce, Benjamin Mills		Train, Charles Jackson
Perkins, John Wright		Tucker, William Lawrence
Peters, William		Tweed, Charles Harrison
Poor, Henry William		Ward, Thomas Wren
Potts, Jesse Walker		Ware, Frederic
Proctor, George Newton		Warren, William Harrington
Putnam, Charles Pickering		*Wellman, Henry Cleveland	1866
Rand, Charles Arthur		Wilder, Enos
Rodgers, Horace Clapp		Willard, Joseph Henry
Rogers, James Swift		Williams, Edward Tufts
Rotch, William		Williams, Gorham Deane
Russel, Cabot Jackson*	1863	Williams, Henry Bigelow
Russell, George Briggs		Withington, James Harvey
Russell, George Reed			129

HARVARD COLLEGE.

CLASS OF 1865.

FRANCIS JOHN ALISON. He was born at Jennerville, Penn., 16 May, 1843.

After graduating, he travelled through the Southern States, prospecting, and intending to engage in farming. He did not like, however, and soon returned. He then went to California, overland, and remained there from six to nine months. He is reported to be at present in Philadelphia.

LUDLOW APJONES. He was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, 4 April, 1844.

He writes that his history is as follows: "Two years' study of the law, a summer in Europe in 1867, and a systematic attempt at slow starvation since October, 1867." He is a member of the Bar.

Address: No. 3 Germania Building, Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

FRANK EUSTACE ANDERSON. He was born in Roxbury, Mass., 2 November, 1844.

After graduation he sailed for England, 13 September, 1865, and took up his residence in Cambridge. He joined Trinity College, and, as he writes, "by extraordinary good luck he got in as a Pensioner." He still remains at Trinity College. In 1868 he was elected to a foundation scholarship at that College, for his proficiency in the classics, after an examination in which he had to compete with those who had been the pupils of the great English public schools.

He is a member of the Union Society, Cambridge, England.
Address: Trinity College, Cambridge, Eng.

ROBERT HALE BANCROFT. He was born in Boston, 22 April, 1843.

The first year after graduation he spent at the Harvard Law School. In the fall of 1866, he entered the office of the Hadley Company, in Boston, as clerk, where he still remains.

Address: No. 9 Chestnut Street, Boston.

GEORGE BLIGHT. He was born in Philadelphia, Penn., 17 February, 1845.

In July, 1866, he began the dry goods commission business in Philadelphia, in the branch house of the New York firm of Hoyt, Sprague, & Co. 18 April, 1868, he sailed for Europe, intending to travel there for six months. He expects to enter again upon his former position after his return.

Address: Care of Brown, Shepley, & Co., London. After his return, his address will be, 235 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

WILLIAM ELBRIDGE BOARDMAN. He was born in Boston, 27 April, 1844.

After his graduation, he became a student at the Harvard Medical School. 19 February, 1867, he received the appointment of Medical House Officer at the Boston City Hospital, after a competitive examination. He remained in that institution for a year, and then returned to the Medical School. He expects to receive the degree of M. D. in July, 1868. He will sail for Europe, 20 July, 1868, intending to continue his studies at Vienna for two years. He is a member of the Boston Natural History Society.

Address: No. 204 Springfield Street, Boston.

* CHARLES MALCOLM BOYD. He was born in West Newbury, Mass., 13 February, 1840.

He joined our Class at the beginning of the Sophomore year, and left about the middle of the Junior year, on account of ill health. He died at Ravenna, Ohio, 30 June, 1864. Our classmate Snow, in writing of Boyd's life and character, says : —

" In 1857, I think, he went to Andover, Mass., to school, and soon left and went to Phillips Academy, Exeter, where I met him in 1858, then a member of the Senior class. He entered Harvard College in the fall of 1860 as a Sophomore, and remained until the next spring, when, by weakness of his eyes, he was compelled to leave, and was kept out till the fall of 1862. He then entered our Class as Sophomore, and remained until a few weeks before his death. He was studying for the Congregational ministry. A more consistent, conscientious Christian I never was acquainted with. His goodness and geniality commanded the respect and esteem of all his friends and acquaintances. Death could not come too suddenly for him, for he was always ready."

At a meeting of the Class held 5 July, 1864, the following resolutions were adopted : —

" Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from us by sudden death our beloved classmate, Charles Malcolm Boyd,

" Resolved, That, while we bow with submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, we feel deeply the loss of one who had won our respect and esteem by his manly and genial spirit, his upright life, and Christian integrity.

" Resolved, That, while we feel confident that their loss is his gain, we tender our heartfelt sympathy to his afflicted family and friends in their bereavement.

" Resolved, That, as a token of respect, we wear the usual badge of mourning.

" Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and that they be printed in the papers of the day."

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS BRACKETT. He was born in Bradford, N. H., 8 June, 1842.

In the autumn of 1865 he received the position of sub-master in the Salem High School, and remained there from September till the last of November of the same year, when he resigned. He began the study of law in the office of J. Brown, Esq., Boston, 1 December, 1865. During the following winter he lectured in behalf of the New England Freedmen's and Union Commission in Yarmouth, Harwich, Cotuit Port, Weymouth, and several other towns in Massachusetts. In May, 1866, he "became the pioneer in the celebrated missionary movement to the benighted mountain fastnesses of Vermont in behalf of the freedmen aforesaid," when "Washington County was the scene of his crusade," and there he lectured for two weeks.

In September, 1866, he entered the Harvard Law School, where in June, 1867, he received the second prize for a dissertation upon the subject, "When and on what grounds is the participant in the profits of a partnership exempt from liability as a partner for its debts?"

During the winter of 1866 – 67 he lectured several times in different towns in behalf of the association already referred to, and also "held forth upon other subjects" before lyceums in Boston, Amesbury, Concord, and two or three other places. In July, 1867, he delivered an oration before the Alumni of the New London (N. H.) Literary and Scientific Institution.

He remained in the Law School until January, 1868; was admitted to the Suffolk Bar after an examination, 15 February, 1868; and is now practising law at No. 81 Washington Street, Boston, and living in Cambridge.

He is a member of the Mercantile Library Association.

Address: Cambridge; or 81 Washington Street, Boston.

JOHN HENRY BRADFORD. He was born in Manchester, Eng., in September, 1843.

Some time after graduation he went overland to California, from there to Japan, thence westward to Europe, and finally to America again, 17 June, 1867, after a journey of about a year. 3 July, 1867, he was married to Miss E. C. Phipps, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and is at present travelling in Europe with his wife.

THOMAS FRANKLIN BROWNELL. He was born in New Bedford, Mass., 3 January, 1842.

In June, 1865, he began the study of law in the office of

Hon. John H. Clifford, at New Bedford. In September, 1865, he began a course of special instruction in law with Hon. E. H. Bennett, of Taunton, which continued until June, 1867, and during this time and till September, 1867, he remained in Mr. Clifford's office. From September, 1867, till March, 1868, he was at the Harvard Law School, after leaving which he returned to New Bedford. He afterwards removed to New York, and 7 June, 1868, entered the office of Francis C. Nye, Esq. (H. U. 1863), where he is at the present time.

In September, 1866, he joined the Vermont crusade with Clifford and Tweed, and lectured in various insignificant towns in Addison County during three weeks in behalf of the New England Freedmen's and Union Commission. He has always declared this expedition to be pleasant — to look back upon.

While at Cambridge, he was an immediate member of the "Colony," and is at present a member of the Harvard Club of Cambridge.

Address: Care of F. C. Nye, Esq., No. 229 Broadway, New York.

ALBERT CLARK BUZELL. He was born in Northwood, N. H., 11 December, 1844.

He entered the office of Hon. C. H. Bell, in Exeter, N. H., 20 November, 1865, where he remained until 1 December, 1866, when he entered the Harvard Law School. Here he will remain until July, 1868, receiving at that time the degree of LL. B. He was admitted to the Bar in Boston, 27 January, 1868.

Address: Exeter, N. H.

JAMES READ CHADWICK. He was born in Boston, 2 November, 1844.

Soon after Class Day, 1865, he sailed for Europe with Mifflin, Peirce, and Tucker; travelled through Ireland, spent the following summer and autumn in Paris; from 1 October, 1865, till 1 May, 1866, lived in Tours, studying French; passed the summer of 1866 in travelling in Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Russia; passed the following winter in Halberstadt, Prussia, with Tucker, studying German; in January, 1867, returned to America; in February, 1867, returned again to Europe; travelled through Italy, and, after residing in Vienna two months, through Switzerland and Germany, sailed for America again 26 November, 1867. Having become interested in the study of medicine while at Vienna, he joined the Harvard Medical School three days after his return, where he still remains.

Address: No. 69 Beacon Street, Boston.

JOHN WESLEY CHURCHILL. He was born in Fairlee, Vt., 26 May, 1839.

After graduation, he entered the Theological Seminary at Andover, from which he expects to graduate in August, 1868. He was licensed to preach, 12 December, 1867, by the Andover Association, at Lowell, Mass. He has been for three years Instructor in Elocution in Phillips Academy, Andover, and the Abbott Female Academy, Andover, and for two years in the Theological Seminary in the same place; also at different times in Brown University, Providence, R. I., and in Miss Shaw's private school in Providence.

He will "probably teach elocution for five or six years, and not be settled over any church, though continuing to preach as he has opportunity." He purposes to reside in Europe a year, beginning either in the fall of 1868 or that of 1869.

Address: Andover, Mass.

CHARLES WARREN CLIFFORD. He was born in New Bedford, Mass., 19 August, 1844.

Immediately after Class Day he began studying law in the office of his father, Hon. John H. Clifford, in New Bedford, where he remained until September, 1867. From September, 1865, until June, 1867, he received, with Tweed and Brownell, instruction in a special course under Hon. E. H. Bennett, of Taunton, Mass. In September, 1867, he entered the Harvard Law School, remaining until March, 1868, at which time he entered the office of John C. Dodge, Esq., in Boston, where he still continues. He was admitted to the Bar in June, 1868, and intends to practise his profession in New Bedford, Mass.

In September, 1866, he made a lecturing tour in behalf of the New England Freedmen's and Union Commission through Washington County, Vermont, for three weeks.

He is a Justice of the Peace, has been Inspector of Elections for three years at New Bedford, and is President of the Massachusetts State Association of N. B. B. P. He was a member of the famous "Colony" at Cambridge. He is a member also of the Harvard Club of Cambridge.

Address: New Bedford, Mass.

JOSEPH COOK. He was born in Ticonderoga, N. Y., 26 January, 1838.

Since graduation he has studied theology at the Theological Seminary in Andover, from which he expects to graduate 6 August, 1868.

Address: Andover, Mass.

HORATIO GREENOUGH CURTIS. He was born in Boston, 2 February, 1844.

He travelled in Europe, returned home, and, after remaining awhile, went again to Europe, and entered the office of John Munroe & Co., in Paris, where he is at the present time.

Address: Care of John Munroe & Co., No. 7 Rue Scribe, Paris.

WALTER DABNEY. He was born in Fayal, Azores, 30 October, 1844.

In February, 1867, he formed a partnership with Mr. F. W. Gardner, and engaged in business in Boston. In July, 1867, he entered into partnership with his brother, Mr. G. S. Dabney (H. U. 1863), under the name of "Dabney Brothers." His business is that of Cotton Brokerage.

Address: 81 Milk Street, Boston.

GEORGE WALES DILLAWAY. He was born in Roxbury, 18 October, 1845.

The first year after graduation he was private tutor, and lived in Canandaigua, N. Y. He joined the Harvard Law School 15

September, 1866, where he remained until March, 1868. He was admitted to the Bar, 29 May, 1868. He now resides in Cambridge, and is a Proctor in Harvard College.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

ORLANDO WITHERSPOON DOE. He was born in South Newbury, Vt., 29 September, 1843.

He began the study of medicine in November, 1865, at the Harvard Medical School. 14 February, 1868, he was appointed Medical House Officer in the Boston City Hospital, where he intends to remain until 1 April, 1869. He is a member of the Boylston Medical Society.

Address: City Hospital, Harrison Avenue, Boston.

WALTER HENRY DORR. He was born in Roxbury, Mass., 16 June, 1843.

He began the study of law with his father, William B. Dorr, Esq., in Boston, with whom he still remains. He resides in Roxbury.

Address: Box 1532, P. O., Boston.

WILLIAM BULLARD DURANT. Né William Durant Bullard. He was born in Barre, Mass., 29 September, 1844.

For the first two years after graduation he lived in Cambridge, and engaged in teaching in Boston. He entered the Harvard Law School in September, 1867, where he still remains.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

CHARLES JAMES ELLIS. He was born in Roxbury, Mass., 9 April, 1845.

He left College on account of ill health in January, 1865, went to Northboro', Mass., and worked on a farm "for $14 per month and his board, which he swears he earned." After remaining there four months, and being much improved in his physical condition and in general health, he returned to Roxbury and continued his out-door labor on the farm of his friend Andrews (H. U. 1853). At the recommendation of his physician, he sailed for Barbadoes, 1 December, 1865, and remained there the greater part of the following winter. He returned home in the spring of 1866, much improved in health, and immediately began the study of law in the office of his father, Charles M. Ellis, Esq. (H. U. 1839), in Boston, "where he has since led a life devoid of notable incidents, save the occasional laying aside of a volume which he has read, and the beginning of a new one." He received his degree of A. B. in July, 1865.

Address: No. 96 Washington Street, Boston.

GEORGE SEWARD FFROST. He was born in Durham, N. H., 4 June, 1844.

During the winter after graduation he "was busily engaged in doing nothing in the sweet little town of Durham." In February, 1866, he entered the office of Jeremiah Smith, Esq., in Dover; remained there until 4 March, 1868; and then entered the Harvard Law School, where he is at the present time. He is a Justice of the Peace.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

WILLIAM HENRY FISH. He was born in Millville, Mass., 1 March, 1844.

The first year after graduation he was engaged in teaching as assistant instructor in a boys' boarding-school in Brattleboro', Vt. After leaving there he entered the Harvard Divinity School, where he now remains.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

GEORGE ALBERT FISHER. He was born in Dorchester, Mass., 12 August, 1840.

He left College in January, 1864, and went into camp at Readville, as Second Lieutenant, Company E, Fifth Mass. Cavalry, having been commissioned 29 December, 1863; was ordered to City Point, Va., in May, 1864; 5 July, 1864, was promoted to be First Lieutenant of Company C, of same regiment; served in Maryland and Virginia till the fall of Richmond, and was then ordered to Texas, under General Sheridan; remained at Clarksville, on the Rio Grande, till August, 1865, when he returned home. He entered the Harvard Law School in September, 1865; remained three terms and received the degree of LL. B. He then entered the office of Chandler, Shattuck, & Thayer, in Boston. He was admitted to the Bar in October, 1867, and intends to practise in Boston. Upon passing his omitted examinations, he received the degree of A. B. 17 July, 1867.

Address: No. 27 Court Street, Boston; or Mattapan, Mass.

ISAAC VANDERPOEL FRENCH. He was born in Albany, N. Y., 26 September, 1845.

After graduation he resided four months in Cazenovia, N. Y., studying law with Charles Stebbins, Jr., Esq.; then for two months in Albany, N. Y., with Peter Cagger, Esq.; since, with Morris S. Miller, Esq., in New York. He was admitted to the Bar in May, 1867, and engaged in business for self in May, 1868. From 1 January, 1866, till May, 1868, he was clerk in the Mayor's Office, New York. He was appointed Notary Public in May, 1868. He is a member of the Harvard and University Clubs, and of the Y. M. C. A. of New York.

Address: No. 68 Wall Street, New York.

WILLIAM ABRAMS FRENCH. He was born in Boston, 17 October, 1843.

He first engaged in business in the store of his father, Mr. Abram French, in Boston. Afterwards he was for a short time with the firm of Farnham, Gilbert, & Co., and then, entering into partnership with Mr. Henry Cormerais, he engaged in the business of importing fancy articles in glass, porcelain, and marble, in which he continues at the present time. He sailed for Europe 9 May, 1866, and remained nearly a year.

Address: Care of Henry Cormerais & Co., No. 37 Federal Street, Boston.

GEORGE AUGUSTUS GODDARD. He was born in Milton, Mass., 5 July, 1844.

For two years after graduation he studied in the Lawrence Scientific School in Cambridge. He is at the present time in Europe.

WILLIAM JASON GOLD. He was born in Washington, D. C., 17 July, 1845.

Soon after graduation he entered the General Theological Seminary in New York City, where he remained until November, 1867, when he went to Minnesota. He intends to return to New York in the summer of 1868.

Address: Falibault, Minnesota.

FRANCIS BUNKER GREENE. He was born in New Bedford, Mass., 20 February, 1844.

In October, 1865, he entered the Dighton Woollen Mills, and remained there until August, 1866. In April, 1867, he began to study law in the office of Stone and Crapo, in New Bedford. He took an active part in an exciting municipal election in New Bedford in December, 1867, and held the office of Ticket Distributor in Ward Four. The emoluments of this office, however, were too small to detain him permanently from the law, in the study of which he is still engaged.

Address: New Bedford, Mass.

ALFRED GREENOUGH. He was born in Boston, 27 February, 1844.

He passed the first year after graduation at the Harvard Law School. He then went to Europe for the purpose of travel. While in Egypt he became severely ill, and was obliged to return home. He is now in Paris, studying architecture.

Address: No. 46 Rue de Vangirard, Paris, France.

DAVID STODDARD GREENOUGH. He was born in Jamaica Plain, Mass., 16 July, 1844.

1 January, 1866, he entered the service of the Hyde Park Woollen Company; has been in their mills, occupying various positions, ever since, and "sees no prospect of changing his line of business." He has been a member of the Sons of Temperance and Good Templars, is a Freemason, and intends to join the Odd Fellows.

Address: Hyde Park Woollen Co., Hyde Park, Mass.

JOHN GREENOUGH. He was born in Jamaica Plain, 25 March, 1845.

Since graduation he has been engaged as clerk with Grinnell, Minturn, & Co., New York. He is a member of the Harvard and University Clubs, and of the Y. M. C. A. of New York.

Address: Care of Grinnell, Minturn, & Co., New York.

JAMES IRA HANSON. He was born in West Cambridge, Mass., 23 January, 1843.

He left us in the Junior year to join the army; enlisted as Private, Mass. Forty-Second Volunteer Infantry, 20 July, 1864; was discharged 11 November, 1864, and rejoined the Class. After graduation he taught in the High School in Lexington, Mass., until the spring of 1866, when he began to teach in the High School in Uxbridge, Mass., where he remains at the present time. He joined the Odd Fellows in April, 1867.

Address: Uxbridge, Mass.

GEORGE ANTHONY HILL. He was born in Sherburne, Mass., 25 August, 1842.

In August, 1865, he was appointed Tutor in Chemistry in Harvard College, and still holds that position. He is also studying law in the Harvard Law School, which he entered in March, 1868.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

FRANK MERRICK HOLLISTER. Buffalo heard him scream for the first time, 28 November, 1843.

After graduation he "entered" the office of the Ætna Insurance Company in Buffalo. In December, 1865, he engaged with Sawyer, Mansfield, & Co., in Boston, where he still remains. For about two years he lived in Jamaica Plain; and in September, 1867, he moved to Cambridge. He was an active member of the "Colony," by which Society he was elected Poet for their first Centennial celebration. He is also a member of the Harvard Club of Cambridge, and writes that he "expects an LL. D. this summer."

Address: Cambridge, Mass., or No. 74 Summer Street, Boston.

JABEZ SILAS HOLMES. He was born in Bristol, R. I., 10 October, 1844.

He has not been heard from since graduation, nor has any answer to the circular addressed to him been received. From other sources it is learned that he engaged in business in New York during the first year after graduation; then studied law with Causten Browne, Esq., in Boston; was admitted to the Bar and to partnership with Mr. Browne, and is now practising law in Boston. He is a member of the Somerset Club of Boston.

Address: No. 46 School Street, Boston.

HENRY HOOPER. He was born in Marblehead, Mass., 13 February, 1844.

After residing in the West for a number of months on account of ill health, he returned to Massachusetts and entered the Harvard Medical School. During the year 1867 he was a Medical House Officer in the Chelsea Marine Hospital. He became House Student at the Mass. General Hospital, 1 May, 1868.

Address: Mass. General Hospital, Boston.

EDWARD DOWNER HOSMER. He was born in Napersville, Ill., 20 November, 1843.

After graduation he was employed for a short time in a bank in Chicago, Ill. He then began to study law with his father, Charles B. Hosmer, Esq., in Chicago, which it is supposed he intends to continue. In 1867 he went to Europe, where he is now travelling.

Address: No. 441 Wabash Street, Chicago, Ill.

JAMES OTIS HOYT. He was born in Haverhill, Mass., 18 September, 1842.

The first year after graduation he taught in St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass. He then returned to Cambridge and joined the Harvard Law School; was appointed Proctor in Harvard College, November, 1866, and Assistant Instructor in History, January, 1867. He is a member of the Bar.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

GEORGE JOTHAM JOHNSON. He was born in Boston, 29 October, 1843.

After graduation he went to Freiberg, Saxony, and entered the Royal School of Mines, where he remains, preparing himself to be a mining engineer.

Address: Freiberg, Saxony.

* NATHANIEL COLVER LEEDS. He was born in Boston, 24 June, 1843.

He took a commission as Delegate in the U. S. Christian Commission, 21 July, 1865, and started for Washington, D. C. His labor was in the hospitals in and about Alexandria, Va., and for a few days at Fortress Monroe, Va. He returned home the first week in September, 1865, and, 25 September, took a situation as sub-master in the Eliot High School, Jamaica Plain, Mass. He writes under date 15 June, 1866: "Here I continued in poor health, against the advice of friends, till 8 April, 1866, when I was obliged to resign, having on that day an attack of hemorrhage from the lungs. During that week I had three more severe attacks at home (Cambridgeport), bleeding profusely. After several critical days I began to gain strength, and am now able to go out and take the air on pleasant days. My physician says that I must try another climate, recommending Minnesota. I hope to have sufficient strength by September to follow his advice."

His wish was gratified, but unfortunately he still grew worse during his stay in Minnesota, and after a few months returned to his home. He died at Cambridgeport, 4 December, 1867, at the age of twenty-four years and five months.

At a meeting of the Class, held in Cambridge, 6 December, 1867, the following resolutions were adopted: —

"Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from us by death our friend and classmate, Nathaniel Colver Leeds,

"Resolved, That, while we bow submissively to the Divine will, we cannot but mourn deeply the loss of one who had won the friendship and affection of his classmates, by his pure and upright character, his genial disposition and kind heart, and whose undoubted talents and high attainments as a scholar gave bright promise of future usefulness.

"Resolved, That the relatives of our lamented classmate may be assured of our most heartfelt sympathy in this hour of their deep affliction.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, and that the daily papers be provided with a copy for publication."

LOUIS CHARLES LEWIS. He was born in Sandy Hill, N. Y., 17 May, 1842.

For the first year after graduation he taught in St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass. In August, 1866, he became a salesman with Harding Brothers & Co., dry goods commission merchants, in New York, where he remained until 1 January, 1868. In March, 1868, he entered the Harvard Law School. He is a Proctor in Harvard College, appointed April, 1868.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

CHARLES JAIRUS LINCOLN. He was born in Weymouth, Mass, 1 April, 1844.

Immediately after Class Day, 1865, he obtained the position of assistant teacher in the Choules Institute, Newport, R. I., which he filled until October, 1867, when he entered the Columbia College School of Mines, New York, where he intends to remain two years.

Address: Columbia College School of Mines, New York; and during the summer, East Weymouth, Mass.

ROLAND CROCKER LINCOLN. He was born in Boston, 17 February, 1843.

In September, 1865, he began the study of law in the office of Sohier and Dexter, in Boston. He remained there until September, 1866, when he was appointed teacher of Latin in St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass. "This Episcopal boarding-school was founded in 1865, and from its first day has been largely indebted for its early support and success to our Class." Hoyt, Lewis, Lincoln, and Towle have all been teachers there.

Lincoln will remain there until 1 July, 1868.

* JAMES WILLIAM McDONALD. He was born in North Andover, Mass., 1 June, 1845.

He died of typhoid fever at North Andover, Mass., 28 December, 1862. I am unable to find a copy of the Class resolutions passed on account of his death.

ROBERT CLINDENON McILWAIN. He was born in Kartright, N. Y., 4 January, 1838.

Since graduation he has been studying theology at the General Theological Seminary in New York City.

Address: General Seminary, West 20th Street, New York.

* WILLIAM GREENE MAYHEW. He was born in Baltimore, Md., 7 July, 1844.

During the first term of our Sophomore year he was taken sick with typhoid fever in Cambridge, and after a severe siege, in which his life was despaired of, he recovered; and soon after the term closed he was able to return home to Baltimore, Md. There he had a relapse, and soon afterwards died. The Class held a meeting, 7 April, 1863, and the following resolutions were adopted: —

"Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has seen fit, in his infinite wisdom, to remove by death our beloved classmate, William Greene Mayhew,

"Resolved, That we his classmates, while we yield in all humility to the will of the Almighty, do most deeply lament the loss of one whom we have loved as a brother; whose noble and generous nature endeared him to every one; whose gentle manners and genial disposition always brightened the circle in which he moved; whose talents had apparently marked out for him the happiest of futures.

"Resolved, That we in our sorrow would tender to his bereaved family and friends the only consolation in our power, — our truest and most heartfelt sympathy in their great affliction."

GEORGE HARRISON MIFFLIN. He was born in Boston, 1 May, 1845.

He sailed for Europe, 5 July, 1865; lived in Paris through the following winter; left Paris, 10 January, 1866, and travelled through Southern France, Italy, Egypt, Palestine, and other parts of Europe and the East. He returned home, 9 November, 1867, and soon after entered the employment of H. O. Houghton & Co., at the Riverside Press, Cambridge.

Address: No. 80 Beacon Street, Boston; or care of H. O. Houghton & Co., Riverside Press, Cambridge.

LEBBEUS HORATIO MITCHELL. He was born in Lynn, N. H., 30 August, 1833.

He left us at the end of the Freshman year to join the army. He was commissioned Second Lieutenant Mass. 33d Volunteer Infantry, 12 August, 1862; and First Lieutenant, 12 May, 1863. He was afterwards Lieutenant of Engineers, U. S. A.; was honorably discharged 23 March, 1864, and rejoined the Class.

After graduation he went to Europe, and passed two years in Freiberg, Saxony, studying mining engineering. Since his return he has been elected Professor in Cornell University, New York. He is at present editor of the American Journal of Mining. It is reported that he intends to return to Europe before entering upon the duties of his professorship.

Address: No. 37 Park Row, New York.

ALBERT MONROE MOORE. He was born in Lowell, Mass., 27 March, 1840.

After graduation he began to study law with Messrs. Stevens and Anderson, in Lowell, Mass. He was admitted to the Bar, 9 September, 1867.

Address: No. 1 Barristers' Hall, Lowell, Mass.

GEORGE WILLIAM NEAL. He was born in Kittery, N. H., 10 May, 1844.

After graduation he was book-keeper for about ten months in an office in New York, and resided in Brooklyn. Since March, 1867, he has been principal of the High School in Concord, Mass.

Address: Concord, Mass.

ROBERT RALSTON NEWELL. He was born in Cambridge, Mass., 22 December, 1843.

He left the Class to join the Massachusetts Fifty-fourth Volunteer Infantry, having been commissioned Second Lieutenant 12 December, 1863. He served with his regiment, was made First Lieutenant 4 February, 1864, and Captain 11 July, 1865, and returned home in September, 1865. He was Assistant Secretary in the office of the Freedmen's Aid Society in Boston, from 1 October, 1865, till 17 April, 1866. He then entered the office of Chandler, Shattuck, and Thayer, in Boston, for the purpose of studying law. 1 March, 1867, he joined the Harvard Law School, where he remains. He is a member of the Harvard Club of Cambridge. He received the degree of A. B. 17 July, 1867.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

DAVID LEIGHTON ORDWAY. He was born in Bradford, Mass., 5 August, 1844.

Soon after graduation he began the study of law in the office of Noyes and Blunt, in Haverhill, Mass. In September, 1866, he entered the Harvard Law School, and remained three terms. He then entered the office of Hon. J. G. Abbott, in Boston, where he expects to remain until the latter part of July, 1868. He was admitted to the Bar 9 April, 1868, in Boston. He intends soon to make a journey through Europe.

Address: Care of Hon. J. G. Abbott, Boston.

GEORGE FREDERICK OSGOOD. He was born in South Danvers, Mass., 13 July, 1842.

He spent the first year after graduation in New Hamburgh, N. Y., as tutor. He then became clerk for the firm of Winchester, Upham, & Co., wholesale grocers, in Boston, which position he still holds.

Address: South Danvers, Mass.

*SUMNER PAINE. He was born in Boston 10 May, 1845.

On leaving College at the beginning of the second term of the Sophomore year, he received a commission as Second Lieutenant Twentieth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, 23 April, 1863. He joined his regiment at Fredericksburg late on Saturday evening, 2 May, and early the next morning was engaged in the battle of Chancellorsville. His captain, O. W. Holmes, Jr., was very soon wounded, and Lieutenant Paine took command of the company till the battle was over; and he was, according to all statements, calm and cool. He then took part in the forced marches which carried our army to Gettysburg, and in the battle which followed. He fell at Gettysburg on Friday, 3 July, 1863. The following is an extract from a brief memorial account of him, written by his mother, Fanny C. Paine. Could the last words of one be more truly characteristic than those of Lieutenant Paine, as told below? —

"On Friday, 3 July, 1863, the Second Corps, under General Hancock, held the left centre of our line, midway between the cemetery and the Round Top, — the lowest part of our lines left by nature the easiest to assault, and thus the key to our position. It was here that General Lee ordered Pickett's division, composed in good part of veteran Virginia troops, and supported by another column, to make their last terrible assault. Not a shot was fired by the Twentieth Massachusetts till the enemy were near, and Lieutenant-Colonel Macy gave the order. Then its fire was quick and deadly. Though directly in front of them, the enemy did not reach them; but ten or twenty rods to their right the weight of the enemy crushed through our line, passing over it, perhaps thirty or forty yards, up a little hill. It was the crisis of the day, if not the turning-point of the war. General Hancock in command of the corps, and General Gibbon in command of the division, had both been wounded. Colonel Hall, commanding the brigade, was hurrying up his men. Lieutenant-Colonel Macy received orders from him to lead the Twentieth Massachusetts against the enemy. He gave orders to Captain Abbott, who commanded the right company, and to his Adjutant; but before they were repeated to any one else, both himself and his Adjutant were shot down. Captain Abbott led his company; and the other companies, seeing the movement, and with the instinct of assault, followed. Other troops came up. It was in this attack, in the thickest of the fight, and exposing himself in front of his men, that Lieutenant Paine was struck by a ball, which broke his leg. Falling on one knee, he waved his sword, and urged on his men, and was at that moment struck by a shell, which caused instant death. His last words, just before he fell, were, 'Is n't this glorious?'

"The Twentieth Massachusetts mustered that night only three officers and twenty men. But of Pickett's assaulting column a still smaller proportion was left, for there were few who crossed our line without being killed or captured."

The lamented Major Abbott writes as follows of Lieutenant Paine's ability and courage: —

"There is one thing I can bear testimony to, and that is his wonderful talent in making himself one of the most accomplished officers I knew in the army, in two months' time. His memory and application were so great, that in a month's time he knew the whole book of tactics and regulations, and commanded a division in battalion and brigade drill as well as any old officer, besides doing all his guard and police duty with an exactness, a rigor, an enthusiasm, that the commanding officer in vain tried to stimulate in some of the older officers, sparing neither himself nor his men. When Lieutenant Paine was officer of the guard, his influence was felt by the remotest sentinel on the outskirts of the town. His intelligence and discipline, and indomitable resolution, were so fully recognized by Colonel Macy, that he often spoke of promoting him. Besides Lieutenant Summerhays, who saw him as I have described, he was seen by Lieutenant Perkins during the action, — his face, according to both, actually glowing with pleasure, as it used in Falmouth when he had the best of an argument. He used always to be asking me how an officer should bear himself in battle, when he should be behind and when before his men. I had always rather understated than overstated the amount of danger it was necessary to incur, because I had seen at Fredericksburg that he would be rather disposed to expose himself too much than otherwise. He certainly carried out to the letter the duty, as he used to describe it, of an officer charging at the head of his men, and he evidently felt all the joy he supposed he should. His body was found close to the fence, where the Rebels had their last desperate stand."

At a meeting of the Class held 8 July, 1863, only three months after Paine left us, the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, in his wise providence, to remove from this life our beloved friend and classmate, Sumner Paine,

"Resolved, That, while we as a Class bow with resignation to the Divine will, we mourn deeply the loss of one whose whole-hearted manhood and generous character had endeared him to all who knew him.

"Resolved, That in this bereavement we sincerely sympathize with the friends and family of the deceased.

"Resolved, That, while we cannot but grieve at the death of our friend, we remember with gratitude that he fell in defence of his country, another name added to the long list of martyrs to her cause.

"Resolved, That we, as a Class, wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased.

"Resolved, That these resolutions be printed in the papers of the day."

FREDERICK PASCO. He was born in Rustico, Prince Edward's Island, 4 May, 1844.

He enlisted 16 May, 1864, as private Twelfth Unattached Company Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and was mustered out 15 August, 1864.

In October, 1865, he went to Illinois. He taught school one term, and music through the following summer, in Bloom, Cook County, Ill. In November, 1866, he moved to Naples, Scott County, where he was engaged in teaching music. In February, 1867, he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church; in April, 1867, received a license to preach; and in September, 1867, joined the Illinois Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is now Junior Preacher in the Greenfield Circuit of Illinois. He is a member of the I. O. G. T.

Address: Greenfield, Greene County, Ill.

BENJAMIN MILLS PEIRCE. He was born in Cambridge, 19 March, 1844.

He sailed for Europe 5 July, 1865, entered the École des Mines in Paris, and continued his studies there for about eighteen months. He then spent two months in Freiberg, Saxony. He returned home in April, 1867, and entered the Harvard Scientific School. In May, 1868, he went to Marquette, Mich., to fill some position in connection with the copper mines there.

To Peirce belongs the honor of being the first to perceive the needs of the "permanent and temporary residents of Cambridge," and of originating the idea of the Harvard Club of Cambridge, the formation of which is mainly due to his endeavors.

He was an active member of the "Colony," and held various offices of trust and honor in that select community.

Address: Marquette, Mich.

JOHN WRIGHT PERKINS. He was born in Topsfield, Mass., 21 August, 1841.

During the autumn after graduation he taught in Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. In November, 1865, he was appointed sub-master in the Salem High School, where he still remains.

He was married 6 March, 1867, to Esther Ann Rogers Towne, daughter of Alfred Porter and Harriet Newall Towne, of Bradford, Mass.

He is a member of the Young Men's Union and Young Men's Christian Association in Salem.

Address: No. 14 Broad Street, Salem, Mass.

HENRY WILLIAM POOR. He was born in New York, 16 June, 1844.

He was clerk with Henry Fitch & Co., in New York, for six months from August, 1865. In January, 1866, he formed a copartnership with General L. T. Barney, under the style of Barney and Poor, in the brokerage business. This firm was dissolved in September, 1866, and since that time he has been in the railroad commission business by himself.

Address: No. 57 Broadway, New York.

JESSE WALKER POTTS. He was born in Albany, N. Y., 4 November, 1843.

He entered as clerk the hardware store of Maurice E. Viele, in Albany, 16 October, 1865. His duties were so laborious that it was only a short time before he was obliged to leave on account of his health; as soon as he was able he resumed his duties, and continued them until July, 1866, when sickness again compelled him to resign his position. Arrangements having been made for him to open in May, 1868, a store of his own, in November, 1867, he began again in Mr. Viele's store, and remained four months, finally leaving 1 April, 1868. In May, 1868, as arranged, he was established in the hardware business in Albany, which he still continues, being well pleased with his unexpected success.

Address: Albany, N. Y.

CHARLES PICKERING PUTNAM. He was born in Boston, 15 September, 1844.

After graduation he began the study of medicine with Professor Jeffries Wyman, of Harvard College, and remained with him about a year. The two following years he has been at the Harvard Medical School. 1 May, 1868, he entered the Massachusetts General Hospital at Boston as medical pupil, and will remain there one year.

He was elected a member of the Boylston Medical Society in November, 1865; and in February, 1868, received a prize, offered to members of that society, for an essay entitled Omnis cellula e cellulâ.

Address: Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

CHARLES ARTHUR RAND. He was born in Boston, 4 November, 1843.

He left College in July, 1864, and began the study of law with his father, Edward S. Rand, Esq., in Boston. 2 November, 1865, was commissioned First Lieutenant Twentieth Massachusetts Volunteers. December, 1865, was mustered into service. He was appointed Adjutant of his regiment before the close of the year. 1 February, 1865, he was detailed as A. A.

D. C. to Brevet Brigadier-General Macy, on whose staff he remained until the close of the war. He was brevetted Captain in June, to date from 9 April, 1865, and commissioned Captain afterward, but was never mustered. Late in July, 1865, he was mustered out of service as First Lieutenant, with his regiment. He shortly after resumed the study of law.

October, 1866, he became a candidate for Holy Orders in the Protestant Episcopal Church; and at once entered upon the course of preparation at the Theological Seminary of the Diocese of Ohio, situated in Gambier, being now in the second year of the course. He received his degree of A. B. 17 July, 1867.

Address: 68 Beacon Street, Boston.

JAMES SWIFT ROGERS. He was born in Danby, Vt., 28 March, 1844.

Soon after graduation he began business with the Earle Stove Company, of Worcester, Mass. In the early part of 1868 he became a dealer in coal, as member of the firm of Strong and Rogers.

He was married in Worcester, 26 June, 1865, to Anne Buffum Earle, only daughter of Edward and Ann (Buffum) Earle, of Worcester. A son, Edward Earle Rogers, was born 3 May, 1866, who, being the first child born to a member of the class, received the Class Cup on the next Commencement day. Rogers is a member of the G. A. R.

Address: Worcester, Mass.

WILLIAM ROTCH. He was born in New Bedford, Mass., 22 July, 1844.

Having decided to study engineering, he sailed for Europe, 7 October, 1865, and spent one year in Paris, studying the French language, and preparing himself for entrance to the "École Impériale Centrale des Arts et Manufactures." He successfully passed the necessary examinations, and became a member of that school in October, 1866, being received one hundred and eighty-ninth out of five hundred applicants. At the end of the first year his rank was twenty-third in his class, numbering two hundred. He expects to receive in August, 1869, the degree of "Ingénieur Civil," and, after a few months of travel, to return to America. He has passed his vacations in travelling in France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, and England.

He is a member of the "Polidorian Society," of which he was one of the founders.

Address: Grand Hôtel d'Espagne, No. 17 Rue Pavée au Marais, Paris, France.

* CABOT JACKSON RUSSEL. He was born in New York, 21 July, 1844.

He remained with us only a few months. After leaving College he returned to New York, and continued his studies there until the spring of 1862, when he joined a party of scientific men in a journey across the Western prairies by way of Salt Lake. While on this journey he heard of the seven days' battles before Richmond, the effect of which upon him is best shown by an extract from a letter, written by him 10 June, 1862, at Fort Laramie. He says: "The officers gave us their telegrams, which told all they knew, and these said McClellan fought seven days, retreated, and lost twenty thousand men. We do not know whether that is true or not, and I don't know about Jim or Charley (Lowell). If anything has happened to either of them, father, I shall want to enlist as soon as I come back." At Fort Bridger, he learned of the death of his cousin, Lieutenant James Lowell. He sent the letter containing this intelligence to a companion from whom he had just parted, writing across it, "Now I shall certainly go." In another letter, he says, referring to his loss: "Since then I have wanted doubly to go, and I wish — how I wish — father would let me." He immediately returned home, and of him at that time his friend Mr. H. P. Arnold, in the "Harvard Memorial Biographies," says: "He reached home before the time appointed, and upon his arrival his friends were struck with the great change in him. He himself felt like a different person. He had become very athletic, and his clear eye and bronzed complexion testified to his rugged health. He had not lost his winning ways, and they evidently came from a heart grown more manly. But the change was more radical. His whole soul was now bent on joining the army. It was not merely the death of his cousin, nor his sympathy with heroic enterprise, that seemed to influence him, but an earnest wish to perform a worthy part in the contest. He was not appalled at the prospect of losing his life or of being crippled, nor did he appear ambitious of military fame, or anxious to join a crack regiment. He thought the artillery was the most dangerous and honorable post, and preferred it on that account: but he was willing to take the position of private in any regiment in any arm of the service."

He soon afterwards joined the Forty-fourth Massachusetts, and was appointed a sergeant in Company F, Captain Storrow, 12 September, 1862. He served with his regiment through the Tarborough and Goldsborough campaigns, and returned to Boston 4 March, 1863, to take a commission as First Lieutenant Fifty-fourth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry (colored), commanded by Colonel Robert G. Shaw. He was promoted to be Captain 11 May, 1863. After staying in camp for a while, he went with his regiment to Hilton Head. On 10 June, 1863, he took part in an expedition to Florida, under command of Colonel Montgomery. On 15 July the regiment was at James Island. On the 16th Captain Russel was engaged in an action with the enemy, in which he showed great courage and coolness. On the night of the 18th, he was killed in the assault on Fort Fisher. The following account of those days, written by his friend Adjutant James, will be read with interest: —

"Captain Russel took part in the sharp skirmish on James Island, on 16 July, where his company bore the brunt of the battle, and he showed distinguished ability and courage. When the skirmish line was driven in by an overwhelming force of the enemy, he was ordered to regain the old position, and to hold it at all hazards. Accordingly he deployed his skirmish line, advancing anxiously and boldly, with his field-glass in one hand and sword in the other, rallying his men by fours and by platoons, as the necessity of the moment required, and capturing himself the first prisoner of the day. He sent back word to his Colonel in less than thirty minutes, that his line was formed fifty yards in advance of the old one.

"On the night of the 17th, orders were received to join General Strong's brigade, then at the front of Morris Island. About three o'clock of the afternoon of the 18th, the Fifty-fourth reported for duty to Brigadier-General Strong, and was placed by him at the head of an assaulting column, then forming on the beach in front of Fort Wagner, which was the objective point. Captain Russel's company held the left of the second line of the regiment, which position was the most dangerous, on account of its proximity to the flanking fire of James Island.

"At dusk of that night the column was ordered forward, and Russel, with an ardor and devotion which never wavered, threw himself upon his death. When last seen by those who survived, he was lying mortally wounded on the ground, and across him the body of his dear friend, Captain William H. Simpkins, his comrade in arms and in death, than whom the country has lost no nobler and more devoted servant during the war.

"My friendship with Cabot began with our joint entrance into military life; and, from the first moment to the last of that friendship, it presented him full of honor. For one so young he displayed striking ability and strength of character; so that when, at the age of eighteen years, he was placed in command of men of the Forty-fourth, many of them ten years his seniors, graduates of the University, they gladly recognized his title to their confidence and support. Pre-eminently conscientious in all his military duties, frank, sweet-tempered, manly, handsome, he won the respect and personal devotion of his officers and men.

"From temperament and principle he was an enthusiast for freedom; and no one entered into the war with a greater conviction than he, that it was bound up intimately with the interests of liberty. He had no sooner made his choice between the promptings of inclination and those claims he deemed of paramount importance, than his sympathies grew with the enforcement of the negroes' rights. He would gladly have devoted his life, if it had been protracted, to this cause. As it was, he gave it up in its very flower, with a zeal, a courage, a disinterestedness, unsurpassed even in the annals of the war."

I can in no better way close this brief account of the noble life of our loved classmate, of whose memory we all shall ever be proud, than by quoting again from the language of his friend, Mr. Arnold, at the end of his notice of Captain Russel's life.

"The darkness of night hung over the sufferings of that sacrifice, where the noblest and the best appointed to lead black soldiers to death, and prove that they were men, had obeyed the order. When our troops fell back from an assault, in which they were not supported, hundreds of dead and wounded marked how far they had gone. Among those who did not return was Captain Russel. A ball struck him in the shoulder, and he fell. Captain Simpkins offered to carry him off. But the boy had become a veteran in a moment, and the answer was, 'No, but you may straighten me out.' As his friend, true to the end, was rendering this last service, a bullet pierced his breast, and his dead body fell over the dying.

"Some of his soldiers offered to carry him off, but his last order was, 'Do not touch me, move on, men; follow your colors'; and they left him. He was not quite nineteen, and he was breathing his spirit out in suffering, in the darkness of night, amid the roar of musketry and cannon. But he lay by the side of a dear friend, in the steps where his hero leader had fallen, and surrounded by hundreds whom he had helped to raise to be men and fellow-soldiers. There was no one there to receive his last words of affection, but his generous impulses in behalf of his country and his fellow-men were becoming through his blood an element of the nation's life. No stone need mark the place where his bones moulder, for future generations will reverently point to the holy ground, where the Colonel and two Captains of the Fifty-fourth Massachusetts were buried with their soldiers."

CHARLES BAILEY SHUTE. He was born in Malden, Mass., 24 January, 1843.

In September, 1865, he became Principal of the High School in Abington, Mass., which position he resigned in December, 1865, and took that of sub-master in the Brookline High School, where he remained one year, at the same time studying medicine. In November, 1866, he began to study with John L. Sullivan, M. D., of Malden. During the winter of 1867 – 68 he attended lectures at the Harvard Medical School.

Address: Malden, Mass.

* GEORGE HOMER SMITH. He was born in Needham, Mass., 9 June, 1843.

After he left College, he was private tutor for a while in New York, and then entered the office of Henry I. Bowditch, M. D., in Boston, to study medicine. On account of ill health he was obliged to give up study after a brief trial, and died of consumption in East Medway, Mass., 23 January, 1867, at the age of twenty-three years and seven months.

Smith's character was one of remarkable beauty. While he was with us, his nature, delicately sensitive, and his pride peculiarly intense, kept him retired from us, so that only a few indeed knew him or his excellent character. At the Class meeting called on account of his death, your Secretary read to those present a letter received from him, in order that those who did not know him well in life might know him now that he was gone from us. As only a few of us could be present at that meeting, for the same reason a copy of that letter is added, for the sake of those who did not hear it read. It shows how deeply he was interested in our Class, and also that sensitive phase of his character which we cannot but respect and love. It was written in answer to a circular, asking subscriptions to the Memorial Hall. He writes: —

"Please read my letter before you make judgment on the sum I send. I am more sorry than you that it is not larger. You of course knew me as one of the 'poor students' at Cambridge. My father was very poor, so as to afford me no aid at all, and I worked through, partly by scholarships, partly by the aid of friends (making a debt of some hundreds which I am in honor bound to pay), and partly by my own exertions. That accounts for my not having subscribed to the Class Fund, which caused me more sorrow than you may imagine, for I fear that that was ascribed to meanness which was caused by poverty. Still I hoped some time to make up for what I was unable to do then. I had determined to push on through my chosen profession ; and, after having a situation as tutor in New York till November, I went to Boston to enter the Medical School, and the same day was taken down with pleurisy. . . . . Of course this long illness has been expensive, with nearly one hundred visits from a doctor three miles away, and wine, etc. If I were sure of recovery in three months more, I should like sending more, but under the circumstances it would be just neither to my father nor to myself. I am sorry to have troubled you with so long a letter, but I was glad of an opportunity of placing myself in a true light, so as not to be considered mean, while all the rest were so generous." This letter was written 28 June, 1866. This fear that we his classmates would misunderstand him seemed to haunt him, and on his death-bed he requested his mother to write to your Secretary again. She says, 12 January, 1867 : —

" I write at the request of my son, to tell you that he has been sick since a year ago last November, and is fast failing. He can live only a short time to all human appearance.

" When he graduated, and all his classmates were giving for the Class Fund and Class Cup, he could not give as he wished, for he had nothing to give, and it was only by the kindness of friends that he was able to dress himself for Class Day. He felt it very keenly, knowing that it appeared like meanness ; but he lived in hopes some time to be able to give and redeem his character ; and he wishes you to know how sorry he feels that it can never be, for God has ordered otherwise. When that God in whom he trusts takes him to himself, I will write again to you."

Ten days afterwards she wrote : " Homer desired me to notify you as soon as he left us, which he did this morning, at three o'clock, with the full assurance of a blessed immortality."

No words can be a better eulogy than these, showing his sensitiveness and peculiar delicacy, as admirable as it was unfortunate and unfounded.

At the Class meeting which has been mentioned, a letter was received from Dr. Bowditch, who had always taken a kind interest in Smith. It is now given for the benefit of all who have not heard it : —

"I see by the evening papers, that your Class intends to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of G. Homer Smith. I am sure you will not deem it indecorous on my part, if I join with you, so far as I can do so, by relating a few facts connected with his brief but excellent career. . . . . On the advice of his teacher in the English High School, it was decided that Homer should enter the Boston Latin School. Here he spent two years of very hard work, but he fitted himself so well during that time that, I believe, he entered your Class without conditions.

"And here came the first of his trials. Proud and sensitive at the thought of the reception of favors, especially from those richer than himself, he determined at first to live in the simplest style, and to prepare his food at his own room. This course I saw would be fatal to him. I opposed it, and he yielded unwillingly, but he made, I fear, at last, very imperfect arrangements with his landlady, and at a very cheap rate.

"His second trial was the fact that he could not compete with the trained workers who had spent from three to four times as many years in preparation as he had, and his distress was greater when he came out in his first year only the twenty-first in rank. He thought that we — his many friends and I — should think him unworthy, whereas we saw all his difficulties, and admired the success he had achieved.

"His third and greatest trial was the loss of a Bowditch scholarship in his last year. . . . . He felt, as I have stated, degraded before those friends who had given him a helping hand during his course through College. I argued in vain against this notion.

"During a part of his career he expressed a certain degree of bitterness in regard to rich people, which demanded our rebuke. He could not imagine that any such could bestow a favor, except for the purpose of 'patronizing' the recipient of his bounty. But this bitterness gradually wore away, and I saw but little of it during the latter half of his College life. I fear, however, that this dependence and consequent unwillingness to spend for anything but the bare necessities of life may have prevented him from throwing himself as heartily as others do into the festivals of the College. I may be mistaken, but when I remember that I had to argue with him as to the propriety of joining heartily in Class Day, Class supper, and Commencement Day exercises and pleasures, I feel persuaded that I am correct.

"After graduation he spent four most happy months in New York, in the bosom of a delightful family, full of intelligence and kindness. He revelled in books, and devoted himself body and soul to the acquirement of the German and French languages. His kind friends procured for him a pass to the German theatre, and he went several times a week, six miles (three each way), to attend this school.

"His pupil entered Columbia College, and he returned to die by slow and terrible disease (consumption). For two years he fought against it, but it was gradually and surely taking his life away. But not until a few weeks before his death did he have much doubt of ultimate recovery. On one occasion when visiting my study, he asked the plain question, 'Am I going to live or to die?' I replied, 'that no one but the Almighty could certainly know what would be the result; but that it was evident during the long time he had been ill he had not improved, and that, under the circumstances, he ought to consider as a man and a Christian the possibility of death.' He said not a word, but received my remarks calmly; but, as he told a friend, the idea of dying had never risen fully before him until that moment, and that for three days he was rebellious and unwilling to accept of his fate; and then came over him a heavenly peace, which he had never known before, and he accepted every pain he bore as the messengers sent to him by God for his benefit. He became gentle and loving; all bitterness seemed utterly annihilated. 'A peace that passeth all understanding' seemed to and really did possess him. Thankful for the smallest kindness, and full of faith in the Divine goodness, he seemed to shed a peace on all that saw him, so that I verily believe his last few weeks of life were of more real avail upon all connected with him than any of his previous years. From far and near, friends sent messages and gifts of loving thoughtfulness; so that, while cheering his mind, they prevented extra pains to his poor, wearied, worn-out body. With few exceptions (momentary) he retained his entire consciousness to the last two hours, serenely hopeful. He made every arrangement for his simple funeral, requesting that in every way it should be the least expensive possible, in order that some of his hard-earned savings might be left to his parents.

"I have written these few pages to you, in the hope that his classmates may not deem them inopportune, when they are about to give expression to their own feelings on the occasion of his early death. You may have wiser and brighter persons among your number, none better than he was, none more conscientious, none more faithful in the performance of every duty; and most happy will it be for each one of you, if your last hours may be like his."

At a meeting of the Class, held at the Parker House, Boston, 29 January, 1867, it was resolved: —

"That, while we recognize in this bereavement the hand of Him who doeth all things well, we would express our deepest sorrow at the loss of one who, by the worth of his character and the warmth of his heart, endeared himself to all who were favored with his acquaintance.

"That we bear testimony to his brilliant talents, joined with unremitting perseverance, even in the face of difficulties, and above all to that Christian trust which was his support during his long and painful illness.

"That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the afflicted family of the deceased."

MARSHALL SOLOMON SNOW. He was born in Hyannis, Mass., 17 August, 1842.

From 1 September, 1865, to July, 1866, he resided in Worcester, Mass., occupying the position of Associate Principal of the High School. From August, 1866, till September, 1867, he was Principal of the English and Classical High School in Nashville, Tenn. In September, 1867, he took a position in Nashville University, as Principal of the Grammar School Department of the Montgomery Bell Academy, — a preparatory school connected with the Institution, — and Professor of Mathematics in the University. He was married 9 July, 1867, in Exeter, to Ellen Frances Jewell, daughter of Asa and Theodate Jewell, of Exeter.

He intends to teach one or two years longer, and then engage in business.

Address: University Place, Nashville, Tenn.

CHARLES EDWARD SOUTHER. He was born in Haverhill, Mass., 16 August, 1844.

During the first two years after graduation he taught in the private school of Mr. R. P. Jenks (H. U. 1830), 1182 Broadway, New York. The next year he was a student in the Columbia College Law School, and in the office of Vose and McDaniel, New York, where he still remains. He is a member of the Harvard Club, and of the Dwight Law Club, of New York.

Address: No. 8 Pine Street, New York.

GEORGE ALBERT STEARNS. He was born in Hampton Falls, N. H., 30 March, 1843.

He has not been heard from since graduation. He is reported to be in Europe, engaged in the telegraph business.

GEORGE WOODBURY SWETT. He was born in Boston, 1 January, 1843.

He studied medicine one year with Professor Jeffries Wyman, of Harvard College, and then entered the Harvard Medical School, where he still remains. He intends to take the degree of M. D., July, 1868, and then go to Europe, and study in Vienna for two years. He is a member of the Boylston Medical Society.

Address: Care of S. W. Swett, Suffolk Bank, Boston.

THOMAS EDMUND SYMMES. He was born in Westford, Mass., 28 October, 1843.

After graduation he went home and worked at farming for a while. Then he "took up the agency business, and canvassed various places to sell 'The Child's Prayer,' a beautiful engraving." Finding that did not pay, he went to chopping wood for Deacon Meader, of Dover. He says: "As the goddess Fortuna would have it, I cut my foot, one toe almost completely off, but now it has grown on again. This laid me up for a fortnight, and made it a decidedly losing speculation." He then taught school for seven weeks in Durham, Mass.; then worked on the farm at home again; studied Phonography; was author of an essay on "Foreknowledge, Predestination, and Election"; then for two months he worked in the wareroom of the University Press in Cambridge; then he became agent for a patent "Atmospheric" churn, "which did not pay," and then returned to farming once more. In the fall of 1867, he engaged a school in Brookline, N. H., but taught for only two weeks before he gave it up, "as the care and anxiety which the school occasioned him had caused him to lose his appetite and sleep." He then went to Nashua, and began work in the Nashua Lock Factory, where he remained a month, the factory then closing. He then returned home. He joined the Good Templars, 23 October, 1866.

Address: Westford, Mass.

JOHN KERR TIFFANY. He was born in St. Louis, Mo., 9 February, 1843.

He was for a number of months a student in the Harvard Law School; has visited Europe, and is now residing in Worcester, Mass.

Address: Worcester, Mass.

MELVILLE COX TOWLE. He was born in Parsonsville, Me., 14 September, 1835.

The first year after graduation he was Assistant Teacher in Mr. E. S. Dixwell's school, in Boston; the next two years in St. Mark's School, in Southborough, Mass.

He intends to study medicine.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE TUCKER. He was born in Boston, 4 November, 1844.

He sailed for Europe 5 July, 1865, and has since resided there, in France and Germany.

Address: Care of John Munroe & Co., No. 7 Rue Scribe, Paris.

CHARLES HARRISON TWEED. Calais, Me., had the honor, 26 September, 1844.

He began to study law 1 October, 1865, in the office of Hon. Edmund H. Bennett, in Taunton, Mass., with whom he remained until 1 December, 1867. From May till September, 1867, during Judge Bennett's visit to Europe, he had charge of the office. 1 December, 1867, he entered the Harvard Law School, and remained until March, 1868. He entered the office of Jackson and Beaman, in New York, 18 April, 1868, and afterwards, 13 May, 1868, that of Evarts, Southmayd, and Choate, where he still remains. He applied for admission to the New York Bar, 27 April, was examined 8 May, and sworn as attorney, 18 May, 1868.

In September, 1866, he made "that lecturing tour" for three weeks, in Caledonia County, Vt., in behalf of the N. E. Freedmen's and Union Commission; November, 1866, he was commissioned Justice of the Peace for Bristol County, Mass.

He was an immediate member of the "Colony that sprang from '65," and belongs to the Harvard Club of Cambridge.

Address: No. 52 Wall Street, New York.

FREDERIC WARE. He was born in Cambridge, Mass., 3 June, 1843.

He was connected with the Harvard Medical School as Student, from November, 1865, till March, 1868; and for the first year after graduation was studying also with Professor Jeffries Wyman, of Harvard College. He is now continuing his studies with C. E. Ware, M. D. He intends to take the degree of M. D., in July, 1868, and then sail for Europe, to complete his preparatory studies there. He is a member of the Boylston Medical Society.

Address: Cambridge, Mass.

WILLIAM HARRINGTON WARREN. He was born in Westboro', Mass., 11 August, 1840.

In September, 1865, he entered the Theological Seminary in Andover, Mass., from which he expects to graduate 6 August, 1868.

Address: Theological Seminary, Andover, Mass.

* HENRY CLEVELAND WELLMAN. He was born in Brookline, Mass., 6 September, 1844.

After graduation he began to study law, but was obliged soon to give it up on account of ill health. He left Boston for St. Augustine, 14 February, 1866, and finding no relief there he returned home to die, a victim to pulmonary consumption, "regretted for his genial social qualities, his sweetness of disposition, and his beautiful life." He died in Brookline, 18 July, 1866.

At a meeting of the Class held in Boston, 20 July, 1866, the following resolutions were adopted: —

"Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, in his wise providence, to remove from us by death our late classmate, Henry Cleveland Wellman, . .

"Resolved, That, while we his classmates accept with submission this dispensation of our Heavenly Father, we yet cannot too strongly express our sense of the loss of one, whose gentlemanly bearing and uniform amiability bound him to us by the strongest personal ties; whose generous heart and genial disposition have always filled us with emotions of love and affection; whose brilliant talents and superior scholarship gave promise of a life of honor and usefulness; and whose conscientious regard for right, arising from that deep Christian sentiment which sustained him so well during his last painful sickness, made him worthy of the high esteem in which he was always held.

"Resolved, That, in our sorrow, we sincerely sympathize with his family in their far greater bereavement.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the family of the deceased, and to the papers of the day, for publication."

ENOS WILDER. He was born in Lancaster, Mass., 27 September, 1844.

After remaining for about six months with the firm of Frank Skinner & Co., in Boston, in July, 1866, he went to South America as agent, to buy horns and hides. Afterwards he was appointed Vice-Consul (at Buenos Ayres, I think), which position he held for a short time, He then entered the employment of the English firm of E. H. Folmar & Co., and still remains with them.

Address: Care of E. H. Folmar & Co., Buenos Ayres, S. A.

EDWARD TUFTS WILLIAMS. He was born in Charlestown, Mass., 13 November, 1844.

He has been studying medicine since graduation, nearly all the time at the Harvard Medical School. He expects to take the degree of M. D. in July, 1868. He is a member of the Boylston Medical Society.

Address: No. 4 Central Street, Roxbury, Mass.

GORHAM DEANE WILLIAMS. He was born in Bridgewater, Mass., 10 January, 1842.

He taught in the High School in Lowell, for a year after graduation. In November, 1866, he began the study of law with Hon. Charles Mattoon, in Greenfield, Mass., and in March, 1868, was admitted to the Bar. 1 April, 1868, he entered into partnership with Judge Mattoon, and is now engaged in practice. He was commissioned Justice of the Peace, 22 April, 1868.

Address: Greenfield, Mass.

HENRY BIGELOW WILLIAMS. He was born in Roxbury, Mass., 14 February, 1844.

In November, 1865, he went into business with J. T. Eldridge, Real Estate Agent, in Boston, and still continues the same business. He is a member of the Orpheus Glee Club, and of the Handel and Haydn Society, of Boston.

Address: No. 23 Congress Street, Boston.

TEMPORARY MEMBERS.

EDWARD LINDSAY AMORY. He was born in Nahant, Mass., 1 September, 1843.

He left the Class, July, 1862, entered the United States Naval Academy at Newport, R. I., 30 September, 1862, graduated, and was ordered to United States Steamer Swatara, in the West India Squadron, October, 1865. He was commissioned Ensign, 1 December, 1866 ; detached from the Swatara, February, 1867 ; ordered to United States Steamer Franklin, 1 June, 1867, and commissioned Master, 12 March, 1868.

JOHN VAUGHAN APTHORP. He was born in Northampton, Mass., 16 September, 1844.

He left College, June, 1863, and entered the Eagleswood Military School, where he remained until June, 1865. He was commissioned Second Lieutenant Massachusetts Fifth Cavalry, July, 1865, and served in Texas, at the mouth of the Rio Grande, till November, 1865. He was mustered out, 4 December, 1865. He entered the office of Robert E. Apthorp & Co., Real Estate Agents and Mortgage Brokers, in Boston, 1 May, 1866, where he still remains.

Address : Nos. 10 and 14 Devonshire Street, Boston.

GEORGE CONWAY BENT. He was born in Boston, 11 July, 1844.

He left the Class at the end of the Freshman year, and graduated with the next Class in 1866. Since then he has been connected with the Pennsylvania Steel Company in Harrisburg, Penn., and is now Assistant Superintendent. He is a member of the Delta Phi Society, of Pennsylvania College.

Address : Pennsylvania Steel Works, Harrisburg, Penn.

CHARLES HOLDER BORDEN BOWEN. He was born in Providence, R. I., 3 June, 1844.

Leaving our Class during the Sophomore year, he joined that of 1866, and graduated with it. During the first year after graduation, he was with the firm of Minot, Hooper, & Co., in Boston. He sailed for Europe, 16 July, 1867, and remained there about six months. What he has been doing since his return, I have not learned.

His address is not known, but a letter would probably reach him if sent to care of Tully Bowen, Esq., Providence, R. I.

JOHN WILKINS CARTER. He was born in Boston, 30 June, 1843.

He left the Class at the end of Freshman year. He enlisted as private Seventeenth United States Infantry, 2 September, 1862; was commissioned Second Lieutenant, 10 July, 1863; and First Lieutenant, 23 September, 1863. He resigned 9 December, 1864. After leaving the army he engaged in business in Boston, where he resides at the present time.

Address: No. 27 Milk Street, Boston.

WILLIAM EDWIN CHAMBERLAIN. He was born in Oxford, Ohio, 10 September, 1840.

He left our Class during the Senior year. What he has been doing since, I have not been able to learn definitely; but I hear that he resided for some time in New York city, and has now gone to California.

ALBRO ELMORE CHASE. He was born in Paris, Me., 5 October, 1844.

He left the Class near the end of the Senior year. From 1 September, 1865, to November, 1865, he taught in a High School in Milton, Me.; and then until 1 March, 1866, in a grammar school in Portland, Me. He then became a partner in the new house of Stevens, Haskell & Chase, wholesale boot and shoe dealers in Portland. The firm was dissolved 1 March, 1867. From 1 March, 1867, to 1 June, 1867, he was employed as Temporary Inspector in the Portland Custom-House. He then engaged as travelling salesman with Clark & Warren, wholesale boot and shoe dealers in Boston. In October, 1867, he returned to his former position in the grammar school in Portland, and taught there until 1 May, 1868, when he was chosen Assistant Teacher in the Portland High School. There he is now engaged. He joined the Portland Lodge of Masons in April, 1868.

Address: P. O. Box 874, Portland, Me.

EDMUND SANDFORD CLARK. He was born in Boston, 21 May, 1843.

He left College in the Sophomore year. He then entered Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., from which he graduated 29 June, 1865. He became a member of the firm of Clark, Stetson, & Co., in Boston, 1 March, 1867, and of that of Danforth, Clark, & Co., 1 January, 1868. His business is dry goods commission. He purposes to take the degree of A. M. at Trinity College, this year.

Address: No. 151 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JOHN HENRY COPPENHAGEN. He was born in Dorchester, Mass., 8 October, 1842.

He left the Class during the Junior year, joined the next Class, and graduated in 1866. He studied mercantile law for a short time, and "afterwards engaged in the dry goods business."

Address: Boston, Mass.

HERBERT BALDWIN CUSHING. He was born in Boston, 6 October, 1843.

He left the Class at the end of the Sophomore year, and began teaching at the Chauncey Hall School, in Boston, where he now remains. He is a member of the firm of Cushing & Ladd, at the same place. From 14 July, 1866, to 21 August, 1867, he was travelling in Europe.

Address: 115 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

LEWIS ALLEN DODGE. He was born in Hamilton, 1 October, 1844.

After leaving our Class in the Senior year, he went to Georgia, and held the position of local secretary for the Freedmen's Aid Commission. I learn that, afterwards, he was engaged in running a cotton-press in Savannah, Ga.

EDWARD WALDO EMERSON. He was born in Concord, Mass., 10 July, 1844.

He left the Class at the end of the Freshman year.

GEORGE AARON EMERSON. He was born in Orland, Me., 20 December, 1841.

He left College, July, 1862, and taught music in Orland, Me., for about a year. 22 June, 1863, he was appointed Acting Assistant Paymaster United States Navy, which office he held till 25 October, 1865, during which time he was attached to the United States iron-clad Sangamon fifteen months, and stationed in James River, Va., and off Charleston, S. C.; and then to the United States Steamer Pawtuxet, and stationed off the coast of North Carolina. He participated in the two attacks on Fort Fisher, and the capture of the same, as well as of other forts obstructing the approach to Wilmington by water. From 25 October, 1865, to 1 May, 1866, he was a member of the firm of Freeman, Radcliffe, & Co., in Baltimore, Md.; from 1 May, 1866, to 25 December, 1866, he lived in Orland, Me., engaged in no special business. On the last date he entered the office of Hon. Henry Stockbridge, Baltimore, as a conveyancer, where he is at the present time.

Address: No. 36 Lexington Street, Law Building, Baltimore, Md.

CLEAVELAND FOOTE. He was born in Springfield, Mass., 1 January, 1842.

He left the Class at the end of the Freshman year, July, 1862, and enlisted as private in Company A, Massachusetts Forty-sixth Volunteer Infantry; was made Corporal, October, 1852, and afterwards Third Sergeant. He served for nine months, and was mustered out, 28 July, 1863. Upon his return home, he entered the employment of his brothers, doing business in New York, under the firm name of "Foote Brothers," and remained with them two years. This firm being dissolved, and that of Foote, Vibbard, & Co., being formed, he entered the office of the latter, where he remains.

Address: No. 40 Broadway, New York.

HENRY GARDNER GARDNER. He was born in Dorchester, Mass., 3 September, 1844.

He left College at the end of the Sophomore year, entered Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., as Sophomore, and graduated, 29 June, 1865. He formed with Lester M. Clark and S. A. Elden the firm of Clark, Elden, & Gardner, 1 November, 1865, and engaged in the commission business in Boston. In February, 1866, he removed to New York to take charge of the branch house there, and returned in July, 1866. The firm dissolved, 31 January, 1868; and 1 February, 1868, Gardner was admitted a partner of the house of Henry J. Gardner & Co., in Boston; and may now, he thinks, "consider himself settled for life."

He is a member of the University Club of New York, of the Somerset Club of Boston, and of the Boston Board of Trade. He purposes to take the degree of A. M. at Trinity College, this year.

He is a Freemason, and has "passed in ineffable Masonry from the fourth degree, through the consistory, to the thirty-second degree."

Address: No. 24 Franklin Street, Boston.

CHARLES ASHLEY GARTER. He was born in Medina, N. Y., 11 October, 1842.

After leaving College in the Sophomore year, he went to his home in Shasta, Cal., entered a college there, and graduated. Afterwards he returned East, and studied law for a while in Albany, N. Y. He is reported to be at the present time practising law in California.

THOMAS FARRIE GODDARD. He was born in Boston, 29 January, 1845.

He left the Class at the end of the first term of the Sophomore year. He was in a Banker's office in Boston until July, 1863. Afterwards he entered the office of Captain E. D. Brigham, C. S. U. S. A., in Boston, where he remained till the close of the war. He then worked for his father till September, 1867, when he joined the Harvard Medical School.

Address: Harvard Medical School, Boston, Mass.

WILLIAM GODDARD. He was born in Boston, 28 August, 1842.

He writes, "Since I left College at the end of my Sophomore year, I have been most of the time at leisure, waiting anxiously for something to do, or somewhere to go, where I could get settled in business, but have not as yet succeeded. From November, 1865, till July, 1867, I was in business in New York City, as partner with my father (William W. Goddard), in the New Haven Copper Company; but after July, 1867, returned to Boston, as he sold out his business in New York."

Address: No. 99 Beacon Street, Boston.

FRANK GLEAN GORHAM. He was born in Boston, 20 May, 1844.

He left the Class, 8 August, 1862, and entered the counting-room of Iasigi, Goddard, & Co., in Boston, where he remains at the present time.

He enlisted 16 July, 1864, and served for one hundred days as Sergeant in Company H, Sixth Massachusetts Volunteers. He is a member of the Lafayette Lodge of Freemasons, of Roxbury.

Address: No. 36 Central Wharf, Boston.

RICHARD CRANCH GREENLEAF. He was born in Boston, 12 February, 1845.

He left the Class at the end of the Freshman year, joined the next, and graduated in 1866. In September, 1866, he entered the Harvard Medical School, from which he expects to graduate in 1869.

Address: No. 9 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston.

* WILLIAM CHANNING HENCK. He was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 6 August, 1844.

It is reported that, after leaving College in the Sophomore year, he entered the army, and soon after died.

WILLIAM CAREY HOWARD. He was born in Easton, Mass., 18 January, 1841.

He left us at the end of the first term of the Freshman year. He does not write as to his occupation previous to 1865, and states that in that year he taught school in Massachusetts. In November, 1866, he removed to Illinois, and since that time has been engaged in teaching there.

Address: Lincoln, Logan County, Ill.

WALTER HUNNEWELL. He was born in Boston, 28 January, 1844.

He left the Class near the beginning of the Senior year, and joined Professor Agassiz's Exploration Party to Brazil, 1 April, 1865. He returned in March, 1866. Immediately afterward he went to Greenup Court House, Ky., and entered the office of the Kentucky Improvement Company, — a coal and iron company. He left the estate in November, 1867, and took the agency of the Company in Cincinnati, for the sale of coal and pig-iron. In March, 1868, he left Cincinnati, and returned to Greenup to start, for some Eastern men, a company to build a short railroad to the Ohio river from some iron-ore property. He writes: "I have just got the charter from the State government, and am now waiting for a pleasant day, to start off with the engineers, to 'locate' a line, and make the 'estimates.' So I am here in Kentucky for the present, in the iron and coal business, and shall probably stop here a year or so longer. I shall not be able to be in Boston in July, and so must put off the pleasure of meeting some of the old Class for another three years."

Address: Care of H. H. Hunnewell & Sons, Boston, or Greenup Court House, Ky.

PATRICK TRACY JACKSON. He was born in Boston, 19 December, 1844.

He left the Class, 16 April, 1863, having received a commission as Second Lieutenant Massachusetts First Cavalry, of that date. He served with this regiment till 12 March, 1864, and was commissioned First Lieutenant Massachusetts Fifth Cavalry, 2 March, 1864. He was mustered into the Fifth Cavalry 30 March, 1864, and served with it till he was discharged 1 December, 1865. He then engaged in learning cotton manufacturing at the Hampden Mills, Holyoke, Mass., where he now remains.

Address: Hampden Mills, Holyoke, Mass.

NATHANIEL MARCH JEWETT. He was born in Bangor, Me., 10 October, 1842.

After leaving College in the Freshman year, he returned to Bangor, Me., and has since been engaged in the lumber business.

Address: Care of Mr. G. K. Jewett, Bangor, Me.

ALBERT RIPLEY LEEDS. He was born in Philadelphia, Penn. 27 June, 1843.

He left the Class in October, 1864. In the same month he received the Professorship of Chemistry in the Philadelphia High School. He occupied this position until February, 1865, when he began the preparation of a book on "The Geology, Preparation, and Uses of Petroleum"; and in April, 1865, made a geological excursion through the Oil Regions of Pennsylvania. The book was never published. The summer of 1865 was spent in writing, with Professor Morton, "The Student's Practical Chemistry," which was published in December, 1865. In October, 1865, he was appointed Professor of Chemistry in the Philadelphia Dental College, and also in the Franklin Institute of Pennsylvania. In March, 1867, he became Professor of Chemistry in Haverford College. "The discharge of the duties of these three positions at the same time has made my life a very laborious one." He is a member of the Harvard Club of Philadelphia, the Odontographic Society, the Franklin Institute, the Loganian and Everett Literary Societies of Haverford College, and the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia. He has contributed at different times to the Dental Cosmos, Philadelphia Photographer, and the Journal of the Franklin Institute.

Address: No. 601 North 18th Street, Philadelphia, Penn.

CHARLES BROWN MARSH. He was born in Lynn, Mass., 5 January, 1841.

Since leaving College in the Junior year, he has been engaged in business in Boston. He is reported to be at present with the firm of Haughton, Perkins, & Co.

FERDINAND GORDON MORRILL. He was born in Boston, 23 December, 1844.

He left College at the end of the Freshman year, and went to Amherst College for a while, but he soon left; and, 21 February, 1863, sailed for Spain, returning to Boston, 31 July, 1863. 29 September, 1863, he sailed in the capacity of seaman in the barque Arctic, for Honolulu, returning 29 August, 1864. He received a commission as Acting Master's Mate, United States Navy, 29 September, 1864; and that of Acting Ensign a few weeks afterward. During the last part of the war he did duty on the Potomac and James rivers. He returned home, and in the summer of 1865 joined the Gulf Squadron, doing duty during the most of the time on the United States flag-ship Estrella. He returned home in March, 1866, and soon afterward resigned his commission. During the latter part of his naval life he became interested in the study of medicine, which he began under the ship's surgeon. On leaving the service, he continued his studies with his father, Samuel Morrill, M. D., in Boston; and from September, 1866, in the Harvard Medical School. He received the appointment of Surgical House Student in the Massachusetts General Hospital, 10 March, 1868, and entered upon his duties, 1 May, 1868. He is a member of the Boylston Medical Society.

Address: No. 3 Kingston Street, Boston, Mass.

LEWIS CHAPLIN MURDOCK. He was born in New York, 16 January, 1845.

He left the Class during the Sophomore year, joined the Class of 1866, and graduated 18 July, 1866. In January, 1867, he formed with his cousin the firm of S. M. and L. C. Murdock, and engaged in the iron-brokerage and railroad-supply business in New York, in which he remains.

Address: No. 313 Fifth Avenue, or No. 7 Nassau Street, New York.

LYMAN NICHOLS. He was born in Boston, 18 November, 1843.

He joined our Class near the beginning of the Sophomore year, and remained with us only a few weeks.

LORENZO FRANCESCO PAPANTI. He was born in Boston, 28 January, 1844.

After leaving College at the end of the Freshman year, he entered the Navy. He was commissioned Master's Mate 22 October, 1863, and Mate, in March, 1865.

WILLIAM PETERS. He was born in Ogdensburgh, N. Y., 15 April, 1842.

He left College during the Sophomore year. He is now engaged in practising law in New York City.

Address: No. 39 Nassau Street, New York.

CHARLES NEWTON PROCTOR. He was born in Fitchburg, Mass., 31 July, 1842.

He left the Class at the end of the Sophomore year. For about two months he was cashier in the store of A. G. Garfield, retail hardware dealer, in Chicago, Ill. 1 February, 1864, he entered the firm of Proctor and Wright, and engaged in Fitchburg, Mass., in the same business. 18 April, 1866, he joined the firm of Garfield and Proctor, in Fitchburg, coal-shippers, where he is at present.

21 February, 1865, he was married in Rochester, N. Y., by the Rev. Dr. Claxton, to Mary Elizabeth Newton, daughter of Martin S. and Elizabeth Newton, of that city.

Address: Fitchburg, Mass.

HORACE CLAPP RODGERS. He was born in Newbury, Vt., 8 January, 1843.

He left the Class at the end of the Freshman year, 20 August, 1862; he enlisted as Private in the Massachusetts Thirty-ninth Volunteer Infantry, and 9 June, 1865, was honorably discharged. I am unable to obtain any additional information concerning him.

GEORGE BRIGGS RUSSELL. He was born in Plymouth, Mass., 27 September, 1843.

He left College at the end of the Freshman year. He was commissioned Second Lieutenant Massachusetts Thirty-eighth Volunteer Infantry, 12 August, 1862; First Lieutenant, 4 December, 1862, and Captain, 5 April, 1863. He was transferred to the Veteran Reserve Corps, August, 1864, having been wounded in the foot at Port Hudson. He was afterwards commissioned Major, and served on General Augur's staff. For about a year he was Assistant Provost-Marshal-General of the Defences north of the Potomac, and then for a while Provost-Marshal-General of the same. He is now an officer in the United States Army, serving on General Augur's staff, in Utah.

Address: Headquarters Department of the Platte, Omaha, Nebraska.

GEORGE REED RUSSELL.

He was admitted to our Class, and his name was on the catalogue, — "Only this, and nothing more." He has been engaged for the last six years with various firms in Faneuil Hall Market, in Boston. He is at present with the firm of John Gordon & Co., but expects to change his place of business in July, 1868.

Address: Cellar No. 5, New Faneuil Hall Market, Boston.

JOHN CODMAN SOLEY. He was born in Roxbury, Mass., 22 October, 1845.

He left College 20 September, 1862; entered the Naval Academy, Newport, R. I., 19 November, 1862; visited England, France, Portugal, and Spain, in the United States sloop-of-war Macedonian, in 1863; graduated, 12 June, 1866; was ordered to United States Steamer Savannah, June, 1866; to the United States Steamer Marblehead, August, 1866; placed on waiting orders, 19 September, 1866; ordered to United States Steamer Sacramento, 25 September, 1866; visited the Canary Islands, Azores, West Coast of Africa, and was finally wrecked on the Coromandel Coast, 19 June, 1867. He remained in India three months, and returned to America in a British troop ship. He was again placed on waiting orders, 23 November, 1867, and ordered to ordnance duty, Boston Navy Yard, 2 January, 1868, where he now is. He was elected a member of the Naval Institute, 2 January, 1868, and promoted to be Ensign, 13 March, 1868.

Address: Navy Yard, Charlestown, Mass.

FREDERIC WILLIAM SPARRELL. He was born in Charlestown, Mass., 29 March, 1845.

He left College, 30 September, 1862, and, 12 March, 1863, entered the employment of the United States Harbor Commission for the Survey of Boston Harbor. Here he remained until 11 July, 1864, when he was commissioned Third Lieutenant in the United States Revenue Service. He was promoted to be Second Lieutenant, 5 July, 1865, and First Lieutenant, 6 May, 1867, which rank he holds at the present time.

He has been attached to the following United States vessels:

U. S. Coast Survey Schooner Joseph Henry, from 12 March, 1863, to 11 July, 1864.

U. S. Revenue Steamer Kewanee, from 1 August, 1864, to 1 February, 1866.

U. S. Revenue Steamer Seward, from 8 February, 1866, to 22 May, 1867.

U. S. Revenue Cutter Active, from 22 May, 1867, to 22 October, 1867.

U. S. Revenue Cutter Dobbin, from 26 October, 1867, to 14 March, 1868.

U. S. Revenue Steamer Nansemond, from 31 March, 1868, to the present time.

He was married 29 March, 1866, to Marion Rutheven Tenny, eldest daughter of William P. and Sarah G. Tenny, of Boston. A son, Gifford Mills Sparrell, was born 8 March, 1867, but died 3 April, 1867.

3 June, 1867, Sparrell joined St. John's Lodge, No. 2 A. F. A. M. of Newcastle, Del., and is now a Master Mason. He is also an honorary member of the Chi Psi society at Brown University, Providence, R. I.

Address: U. S. Revenue Steamer Nansemond, Savannah, Ga.

WILLIAM BRUNSWICK STICKNEY. He was born in Marblehead, Mass., 16 January, 1845.

After leaving College during the Senior year, he studied law for a while with Hon. I. F. Redfield, in Boston. Of his life since very little is known.

FREDERIC RUSSELL STURGIS. He was born in Manilla, P. I., 7 July, 1844.

He left College in 1862. He joined the Harvard Medical School, November, 1862, and remained there nearly five years. In April, 1865, he became House Physician in the City Hospital, Boston, which he continued for one year. In May, 1866, he became House Surgeon in the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, where he remained till May, 1867. In 1867, he received the second prize offered to members of the Boylston Medical Society, of Boston, for an Essay entitled "Human Cestoids," which was published in the early part of the same year. He received the degree of M. D. in Boston, July, 1867; and in August, 1867, removed to New York, and opened an office. In January, 1868, he was admitted into partnership with Dr. Bumstead, of New York.

He was a member of the Boylston Medical Society, and is of the Harvard Club, of New York.

From June, 1864, till September, 1864, he was abroad.

Address: No. 162 West Twenty-third Street, New York.

FREDERIC H. THOMPSON.

His name appears as a member of the Class during the Sophomore year. This is the only important fact in reference to him that is known.

CHARLES JACKSON TRAIN. He was born in Framingham, Mass., 14 May, 1844.

He left College during the first term of the Freshman year; entered the Naval Academy, Newport, R. I., 27 November, 1861; graduated, October, 1864; ordered to Frigate Colorado, Flag-ship of the European Squadron, 3 April, 1865; and to the United States Steamer Frolic, in 1867. He was commissioned Ensign in 1866; Master, 1 December, 1866, and Lieutenant, 12 March, 1868.

THOMAS WREN WARD. He was born in Lenox, Mass., 8 October, 1844.

On leaving the Class, November, 1861, he studied with Professors Child and Lane; joined the Class of 1866 in the summer of 1862, and graduated 18 July, 1866. In 1865 he accompanied Professor Agassiz's Brazilian Exploration party, where his work consisted in collecting as many species of fish as he could, from the tributaries of any rivers he should cross, on a line from Rio de Janeiro to Para. He returned to New York, February, 1866. After engaging himself for a short time as clerk in the office of F. Consinery & Co., in New York, he entered the Lawrence Scientific School, Cambridge, Mass., September, 1866, to study Mining Engineering. A year afterward he became book-keeper with the firm of S. G. and G. C. Ward, in New York. In February, 1868, he joined the firm of F. Consinery & Co., and engaged in the commission business, in which he is at present.

He is a member of the Century Club, and the Union League Club, of New York.

Address: Care of F. Consinery & Co., New York.

JOSEPH MACY WILLARD. He was born in Chicago, Ill., 28 February, 1843.

He joined the Class at the beginning of the Sophomore year, left before its close, and joined the Class of 1866. He received an appointment to the Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., 17 June, 1864; was presented for the preliminary examinations 23 June, 1864; admitted to rank as Cadet, in July, 1864; received his " warrant " in February, 1865, and graduated 16 June, 1868.

JAMES HARVEY WITHINGTON. He was born in Waterville, Me., 19 December, 1844.

He left College near the end of the Junior year. He was commissioned First Lieutenant Thirty-second U. S. C. I., 14 March, 1864; and Captain Pennsylvania 198th Volunteers, 1 October, 1864. He was mustered out with his regiment, 6 June, 1865.

After leaving the army, he went across the continent to California, where for two years he has been a clerk in the San Francisco Post-Office.

Address: San Francisco, Cal.

SUMMARY.

CLASS STATISTICS.

Time of Entering the Class.

At the beginning of the Sophomore year: — Alison, Boyd, Buzell, Curtis, Ffrost, Hill, Moore, Snow, — W. Goddard, Nichols, Thompson, Willard. — 12.

At the beginning of the Junior year: — Cook. — 1.

At the beginning of the Senior year: — Stearns. — 1.

The rest of the Class joined in the summer of 1861.

Time of Leaving the Class.

During the Freshman year: — Amory, Bent, Carter, G. A. Emerson, E. W. Emerson, Foote, Gorham, Greenleaf, Howard, Jewett, Morrill, Papanti, G. B. Russell, G. R. Russell, Sturgis, Train, Ward. — 17.

During the Sophomore year: — Apthorp, Bowen, Clark, Cushing, Gardner, T. F. Goddard, W. Goddard, Garter, Henck, Jackson, Murdock, Nichols, Peters, Proctor, Rodgers, Soley, Sparrell, Thompson, Willard. — 19.

During the Junior year: — Coppenhagen, Marsh, Withington. — 3.

During the Senior year: — Chamberlain, Chase, Dodge, Hunnewell, A. R. Leeds, Stickney. — 6.

Time of Graduation.

Commencement of 1867: — Fisher, Newell, Rand. The rest graduated at the Commencement of 1865.

Occupations.

Theology. — Churchill, Cook, Fish, Gold, McIlwain, Pasco, Rand, Warren.

Law. — Apjones, Brackett, Brownell, Buzell, Clifford, Dillaway, Dorr, Durant, Ellis, Ffrost, Fisher, I. V. French, Greene, Holmes, Hosmer, Lewis, Moore, Newell, Ordway, Souther, Tiffany, Tweed, G. D. Williams, —— Peters.

Those in Italics have been admitted to the Bar.

Medicine. — Boardman, Chadwick, Doe, Hooper, Putnam, Shute, Swett, Ware, E. T. Williams, —— T. F. Goddard, Greenleaf, Morrill, Sturgis.

Those in Italics have received the degree of M. D.

Business. — Bancroft, Blight, Curtis, Dabney, W. A. French, D. S. Greenough, J. Greenough, Hollister, Mifflin, Osgood, Poor, Potts, Rogers, Wilder, H. B. Williams, —— Apthorp, Bent, Bowen, Clark, Coppenhagen, Foote, Gardner, W. Goddard, Gorham, Hunnewell, Jackson, Jewett, Marsh, Murdock, Proctor, G. R. Russell, Ward, Withington.

Teaching. — Hanson, Hill, Hoyt, R. C. Lincoln, Mitchell, Neal, Perkins, Snow, Towle, —— Chase, Cushing, Howard, A. R. Leeds.

Engineering. — G. A. Goddard, Johnson, C. J. Lincoln, Rotch.

Metallurgist. — Peirce.

Navy. — Amory, Soley, Train.

Army. — G. B. Russell, Willard.

Student. — Anderson.

Architect. — A. Greenough.

Conveyancer. — G. A. Emerson.

U. S. Revenue Service. — Sparrell.

Farming. — Symmes.

Travelling. — Bradford, Tucker.

Unknown. — Alison, Stearns, —— Carter, Chamberlain, Dodge, E. W. Emerson, Garter, Nichols, Papanti, Rodgers, Stickney, Thompson.

WAR RECORD.

Army.

Major. — G. B. Russell.

Captains. — Newell, Rogers, —— Russell, Withington.

Lieutenants. — Fisher, Mitchell, Paine, Rand, —— Apthorp, Carter, Jackson.

Sergeants. — Foote, Gorham.

Privates. — Hanson, Pasco, E. T. Williams, —— Rodgers, Sparrell.

Navy.

A. A. Paymaster. — G. A. Emerson.

Mate. — Papanti.

Acting Ensign. — Morrill.

DEGREES, &c.

Master of Arts, July, 1868. — Apjones, Bancroft, Boardman, Brownell, Buzell, Chadwick, Churchill, Clifford, Cook, Doe, Dorr, Durant, Ellis, Ffrost, D. S. Greenough, Hanson, Hill, McIlwain, Moore, Neal, Ordway, Shute, Snow, Souther, Swett, Tucker, Tweed, Warren. — At Trinity College, Clark, Gardner.

Doctor of Medicine, 1868. — Boardman, Doe, Hooper, Putnam, Swett, Ware, E. T. Williams. — 1867, Sturgis.

Bachelor of Laws. — Brackett, Buzell, Dillaway, Fisher, Ordway.

Justices of the Peace. — Brownell, Clifford, Ffrost, Tweed, G. D. Williams.

Freemasons. — Bradford, D. S. Greenough, —— Chase, Gardner, Gorham, Sparrell.

Odd Fellows. — Hanson.

The following have visited Europe for study or pleasure, and those who have returned are printed in Italics: —

Anderson, Apjones, Blight, Bradford, Chadwick, Curtis, W. A. French, G. A. Goddard, A. Greenough, Hosmer, Johnson, Mifflin, Mitchell, Peirce, Rotch, Stearns, Tiffany, Tucker, —— Amory, Bowen, Cushing, Morrill, Soley, Sturgis, Train.

The names of four have changed: — William Durant Bullard, to William Bullard Durant; Flavius Joseph Cook, to Joseph Cook; Ludlow Ap Jones to Ludlow Apjones; and Ferdinand Gorges Morrill, to Ferdinand Gordon Morrill.

MARRIAGES.

Rogers,	Anne Buffum Earle,	Worcester,	16 June, 1865.
Bradford,	E. C. Phipps,	Cincinnati,	3 July, 1867.
Perkins,	Esther Ann Rogers Towne.	Bradford,	6 March, 1867.
Snow,	Ellen Frances Jewell,	Exeter,	9 July, 1867.
Proctor,	Mary Elizabeth Newton,	Rochester, N. Y.,	21 Feb., 1865.
Sparrell,	Marion Rutheven Terry,	Boston,	29 March, 1866.

BIRTHS.

Edward Earle Rogers,	3 May, 1866.
Gifford Mills Sparrell,	8 March, 1867. Died, 3 April, 1867.

DEATHS.

McDonald,	North Andover, Mass.	28 December, 1862.
Mayhew,	Baltimore, Md.	1863.
Paine,	Gettysburg,	3 July, 1863.
Russel,	Fort Fisher,	18 July, 1863.
Boyd,	Ravenna, Ohio,	30 June, 1864.
Wellman,	Brookline, Mass.	18 July, 1866.
Smith,	East Medway, Mass.	23 January, 1867.
N. C. Leeds,	Cambridgeport, Mass.	4 December, 1867.
Henck,	In the South.

MEMORIAL HALL FUND.

The undersigned were appointed to solicit and receive subscriptions from our Class, towards the erection of the proposed Alumni Hall and Harvard Memorial.

A circular was issued, under date of 12 June, 1866, to all the graduated members of the Class. Answers and subscriptions were received from Anderson, Blight, Brownell, Chadwick, Churchill, Clifford, Cook, Dillaway, Dorr, Ellis, G. A. Goddard, A. Greenough, Hollister, Jackson, Johnson, Mifflin, Osgood, Putnam, Rand, Rogers, Smith, Swett, Tucker, Ware, Warren. — 25.

The total amount of subscriptions was $658, all of which has been paid in except $25. Of this amount, $525 has been paid over to the Finance Committee, and the rest remains in our hands. We would remind the Class, that this is the smallest amount given by any Class, — less than one half that of the Class of 1864, — and we should be very happy to receive any additional subscriptions from those who have not already given. It is expected and desired, that each Class should raise at least $1,000.

It gives us pleasure to state, that, in addition to the above-mentioned subscriptions from the Class, an "individual donation" of $5,000 has been made by John Henry Bradford, of our Class.

T. Frank. Brownell,
Charles H. Tweed,
Walter H. Dorr,
Charles W Clifford,
J. Q. A. Brackett,
Committee of the Class of 1865.

CLASS FUND.

The following persons subscribed to the Class Fund: — Alison, Apjones, Anderson, Bancroft, Blight, Boardman, Brackett, Bradford, Brownell, Buzell, Chadwick, Churchill, Clifford, Cook, Curtis, Dabney, Dillaway, Doe, Dorr, Durant, Ffrost, Fish, I. V. French, W. A. French, G. A. Goddard, Gold, A. Greenough, D. S. Greenough, J. Greenough, Hanson, Hill, Hollister, Holmes, Hooper, Hosmer, Hoyt, Johnson, N. C. Leeds, Lewis, C. J. Lincoln, R. C. Lincoln, Mifflin, Mitchell, Newell, Osgood, Pasco, Peirce, Perkins, Poor, Potts, Putnam, Rand, Rogers, Rotch, Shute, Snow, Souther, Stearns, Swett, Symmes, Tiffany, Towle, Tucker, Tweed, Ware, Warren, Wellman, Wilder, E.

T. Williams, G. D. Williams, H. B. Williams, —— Chase, Clark, Gardner, Gorham, Jackson, Sturgis. — 77.

The total amount subscribed was $3,350, which was to be due and payable, as follows: —

19 July, 1865	$ 330.00
18 July, 1866	561.00
17 July, 1867	576.00
15 July, 1868	576.00
June, 1869	576.00
June, 1870	666.00
June, 1871	66.00
Total	$3,350.00

In brief, the Class Fund Account has been as follows: —

19 July, 1865. Dr. to Balance brought from Graduation Expense Account	$ 96.00
Dr. to Subscriptions received	225.00
		$ 321.00
18 July, 1866. Dr. to Subscriptions and Interest	$ 443.10
Cr. by Expenses of the year	208.86
		243.24
17 July, 1867. Dr. to Subscriptions and Interest	$ 508.15
Cr. by Expenses of the year	77.41
		430.74
22 May, 1868. Dr. to Subscriptions and Interest	$ 208.18
Cr. by Expenses	119.37
		88.81
Amount on hand		$ 1074.79

Of this amount, $ 600 is invested in U. S. 5-20 Bonds, and the remainder deposited in the New Bedford Five Cent Savings Bank. It will be observed, by comparing the above brief summary of the condition of the Fund with the schedule of the amounts due, that quite a portion of the subscriptions already due is yet unpaid; and there may be added another fact, which would not appear from this comparison,— that many of the subscriptions are received so long after they are due, that the interest received from the Fund has been far less than it should have been. It is hoped that all will be mindful of this fact in future.

T. FRANK. BROWNELL,
Class Secretary.